Neighbourhood pollution comes in all forms – cigarette butts on street corners, dog remnants on the grass, food wrappers, bags pesticides and fertilizers in our yards. Luckily, a few easy adjustments in habits can snowball into a community effort to make our neighbourhood cleaner and healthier for everyone.

In this context, meet at least five families in your neighbourhood. Discuss and suggest ways to reduce garbage on roads and in the surroundings. You may suggest five steps to make the neighbourhood pollution free by making a poster (using an A4 sized paper or a drawing/ivory sheet) to create an awareness about waste management in your neighbourhood.
